

Carrollton Christian Fellowship

Matthew 4:12-25: Questions

How does Jesus' choice to begin his ministry in Galilee, rather than Jerusalem, challenge our assumptions about where and how God works?

What can we learn from Jesus calling ordinary fishermen as his first disciples, rather than religious scholars or leaders?

How might the concept of being 'fishers of men' apply to our lives and relationships today?

In what ways does Jesus' ministry of teaching, preaching, and healing offer a holistic model for how we should care for others?

How does Jesus' willingness to associate with and heal those considered unclean or outcast challenge our own attitudes and behaviors?

What significance do you see in Jesus fulfilling Isaiah's prophecy about light dawning in the land of Zebulun and Naphtali?

How might Jesus' call to 'repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand' be relevant to our lives today?

What can we learn from the immediate response of the disciples in leaving their nets to follow Jesus?

How does Jesus' ministry to people from diverse backgrounds and regions reflect God's heart for all nations?

In what ways might we need to 'turn around' or change direction in our own lives to more fully follow Jesus?